

Personal protective equipment (PPE)

Make informed and consistent decisions about your personal protective equipment (PPE) use.

First published 31 March 2020 Updated 30 July 2020

Written by College of Policing

COVID-19 5 mins read

The continuing health and safety of all officers and staff is absolutely critical in policing's response to COVID-19.

This operational guidance document, created with the National Police Chiefs' Council (NPCC), explains when PPE is necessary for officers and staff, in both external/public-facing and internal roles. It includes a useful chart for determining the appropriate PPE in different operational situations.

The recommendation in all scenarios is officers have PPE readily available and as a minimum that this is a fluid resistant surgical mask (IIR) and gloves (non-latex).

Related resources

- Personal protective equipment – operational guidance (pdf) 346.99 KB

Tags

COVID-19